INTRODUCTION

This publication contains a listing of Chinese forced labor camps (“Laogai”) found in two Dun & Bradstreet (“D&B”) databases, Duns Worldbase (Lexis-Nexis) and Duns Records Plus (Westlaw).

Dun & Bradstreet is, in its own words, the “world’s leading source of commercial information and insight on businesses.” It further states that “Our global commercial database contains more than 125 million business records....This quality information is the foundation of our global solutions that customers rely on to make critical business decisions.”

In plain language, D&B gathers information on businesses throughout the world enabling companies to check on one another before conducting transactions requiring one company to extend credit to the other. In other words, companies are trying to determine if the company they are about to do business with is likely to make the payment it agrees upon.

Dun & Bradstreet is a publicly-traded company listed on the New York Stock Exchange under the symbol “DNB”. Its headquarters is at 103 JFK Parkway, Short Hills, N.J. 07078. Its telephone number is 973-921-5500. The Chairman and CEO of D&B is Steven W. Alesio.

D&B subsidiaries and joint ventures in China are: D&B International Consultant (Shanghai) Co. Ltd.; and Shanghai Huaxia Dun & Bradstreet Business Information Consulting Co., Ltd. We do not know which operation is responsible for gathering the information we have found on Laogai camps in China.

RESEARCH METHODOLOGY

Laogai Research Foundation (“LRF”) staff used the “Laogai Handbook 2005-2006” edition as its source of information. The Handbook is available at www.laogai.org.

The staff searched each camp in the Handbook by both name and address in two D&B online databases – B-TRAK-D&B Global Market Identifiers Worldbase (Lexis-Nexis) and D&B Business Records Plus (All) (Westlaw).

Only the results which revealed an address match or contained the word “Prison” were included in the final listing. A number of the camps are known by their commercial names. In China, nearly all camps have an official prison name and one or more commercial names. We have included in the listing only those forced labor camps whose names appear in the 2005-2006 Laogai Handbook. Our research revealed numerous new commercial names for many prisons. They are not included in this listing. After further research, these names will be included in the next edition of the Laogai Handbook to be published in the near future.

The following is an example of the raw data on a prison found in both the Handbook and one of the D&B databases:
